Berdick Invests in Reliability and Consistency with New Heat Press

Canadian based window and door manufacturer, Berdick Windows, entrusted Billco when it was time to upgrade their existing Billco Heat Press. The aging press was in need of a rebuild and lacked the ability to produce triple pane units. Berdick based much of their decision to re-invest in Billco equipment on their past experience with Billco. "We chose Billco because we have other Billco Equipment that has served us very well for a number of years. When we have needed assistance with anything, the Billco staff has been great, no matter the issue." states Ron Watts of Berdick.

The new Heat Press not only expands their production capability, giving them the flexibility to bring previously outsourced product in house but it also "adds reliability and consistency to the production line." Watts rates his experience as from start to finish as positive beginning with the purchasing process all the way to the support after installation. "Billco's service and support staff is amazing. They were very helpful and professional, the way it should be!"
